Lycksele the city of Lapland celebrates 400 year as a church and marketplace

Lycksele has been the hub of southern Lapland for several hundred years. All over Sweden it is therefore known as "Lapp Stockholm". Lycksele is a town where people live close to the wilderness as well as leading a town life.

Life quality here is higher than in most other places, and close to 900 companies create a prospering business life. Daily flights to and from Stockholm/Arlanda and a county hospital with an emergency ambulance helicopter are good proofs of Lycksele serving as a centre for communications and community services.
